

REVOLVER DUEL AT MIDWAY BAR

Paul Moletz Fires Shot Into Jaw Of Nick Lamont, His Partner.

TROUBLE BEGAN LAST NIGHT

Notorious Dive Scene of Shooting Scrape This Noon—Many Persons Now in Jail.

Shooting to kill, Paul Moletz, part owner of the notorious Midway bar, at 164 west South Temple street fired a shot into the jaw of his partner in the saloon, Nick Lamont, today about noon and only the interference of Pat. Brown a bartender at the saloon, prevented Lamont from shooting back at Moletz.

While the police were at the accident in the Hotel Utah power plant shots were heard in the direction of the Midway bar and Lamont was found lying on the street with blood spurting from a revolver wound in his jaw. He was hurried to the Emergency hospital where Dr. L. B. Sprague dressed his wounds. Moletz was locked up. Revolvers were found on both men when they were searched at the station.

Trouble started at the Midway saloon last night when Patrolman C. C. Carstensen went into the place and tried to stop a riot that was on there. At that time John Lamont, a brother of the man shot today, pointed a revolver at the breast of the policeman and ordered him from the place. Carstensen left, but returned with another officer shortly after and placed John Lamont under arrest. Nick Lamont at that time was accumulating a load of liquor and was troublesome. Both were arrested and brought to the station where Nick Lamont was released on his own recognizance.

Today he went to the station to try and have his brother released, but he was under the influence of liquor and was ordered away by Lieut. John Hempel.

Shortly after the call came for the police at the Midway saloon. It seems that Lamont went there and ordered whiskey. Moletz refused it, owing to his condition and when Lamont drew his revolver he pushed him from the place. Lamont then stood on the sidewalk in front and threatened to shoot through the window. Moletz then went to the front and drawing his revolver, fired the shot into the jaw of his partner.

As a result of all the trouble John Lamont is a prisoner. Nick Lamont is in the emergency hospital with a bullet wound in his jaw. Paul Moletz is also behind the bars, and Lena Snider, mistress of John Lamont, will go to police court today charged with being drunk. Nick Lamont the wounded man will recover as the bullet merely severed the facial artery and broke out some teeth, coming out at the top of the lips.

PREPARING FOR RUSH.

Postmaster Thomas Makes Timely Suggestions for Mailing Presents.

Postmaster Arthur L. Thomas is preparing for the annual Christmas rush during the holidays, and in order to prevent delays, complaints and lost packages, Postmaster Thomas has prepared some timely suggestions for mailers to those who intend to send presents by mail. He asks that the following suggestions be carefully noted:

Wrap packages in firm paper and tie with stout string.

Be sure that the address is written legibly and with complete name, street address, city and state.

Be sure that in placing the postage stamps do not overlap the edge of the paper wrapping or are placed across the wrapping string. In such cases the package becomes unrecognizable and the accepted as first class mail matter, requiring double postage.

It is safer to use packages by registered mail. The registry department at the central postoffice is open, both for receiving and delivering registered mail or packages, until 3 p.m. each day except Sunday.

Because of the rush, Christmas packages destined for foreign countries should be mailed by next week, in order to insure their delivery at Christmas.

Under the new department order, should the sender desire a return receipt, showing the delivery of a registered package, the package must be marked "Return receipt requested." Without this request no return receipt, as formerly, will be obtained.

USES TACKHAMMER TO LAND BURGLAR

R. A. Barney Makes Capture of Intruder Single Handed In Dark Room.

R. A. Barney, a wooden man, living at 556 south Fifth East street captured a real live burglar last night in the home of Mrs. A. J. Pendleton, at the corner of Fifth South and Sixth East streets, and the only weapon he could find to intimidate the thief was a common tack hammer.

Mr. Barney was awakened about 4 o'clock this morning by the footsteps of a man walking down the stairs. He heard him walk on the porch of the Pendleton home on the corner and a few minutes after he heard women screaming there. He took his trusty tack hammer in hand and sallied forth. In the meantime Miss Dora Barney hearing her father awakened asked the trouble and upon being told telephoned the police.

Mr. Barney went to the Pendleton home and found the women barricaded in their rooms. He found the man in the pantry. Ordering him forth, the burglar came running out with a huge clasp knife in his hands. Mr. Barney grappled with him and subdued him. Just then the police came and the bold burglar was brought to the station. He gave the name of Carl Whitney and said he was a railroad man from Peacottville. At the time he was apprehended Whitney was under the influence of liquor and was mainly so when he entered the Pendleton home. Mr. Barney takes no credit for tackling the burglar single handed in a dark room, and says he has had several similar experiences. He tells of two occasions when he had a revolver and nearly shot an innocent man, and that is why, he says, that he took the tack hammer as a defensive weapon rather than a revolver which he had handy at the time he was aroused by the screams of Mrs. Pendleton and her daughter.

Shackelford's attorneys called upon Judge Marshall, the chief defendant, and vice-president and general manager of the Utah Copper company as a witness before Judge John A. Marshall in the United States district court, Shackelford was formerly employed by the copper company and invented a process in connection with working some varieties of ore. He claims that the Utah Copper company has used the process under his patents.

When Mr. Jackling was called to the stand this morning, he was shown some letters which he had written to Shackelford in regard to a communication from him asking permission for himself and attorney to visit the copper company's property at Garfield, where he alleged his patent was being infringed upon. In Jackling's letters he refused Shackelford or any of his representatives to visit the property. Mr. Jackling identified the letters as being dictated and signed by him. Some other documentary evidence was introduced and then Mr. Jackling was excused. The case will probably consume the remainder of the week.

TO SUBMIT NEW RATES.

Conference Representatives Leave Chicago for Washington.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Representatives of Western railroads who have been in conference here for several days over the proposed advance in freight rates to the Pacific coast left for Washington yesterday to lay the new schedules before the interstate commerce commission.

The schedules adopted show an increase approximating 25 per cent in the class rates of transcontinental long haul.

In submitting this application for an advance in the transcontinental freight rates to the interstate commerce commission, the railroads are impelled by the provision of a recently amended law and the court decision relative to it, prohibiting them from charging more for a short haul than for a long haul of the same line. Rather than reduce rate on the short haul, the railroads will put up the rates on the long haul if the commission will permit.
